6th ISNS World Congress on Nanomedical Sciences (ISNSCON 2018) January 7-9, 2019, Vigyan Bhavan, New Delhi

Nanomedical Sciences is an interdisciplinary research area which is providing major conceptual and technological advances in offering novel diagnosis and treatment alternatives. Thus, scientific community realized the need to focus on one of the greatest challenges of this planet: "Cost-effective and Efficient Health Care" and decided to organize "6th ISNS World Congress on Nanomedical Sciences (ISNSCON 2018)" (January 07-09, 2019, Vigyan Bhavan, New Delhi).

The focus of the congress was to bring academicians, researchers, healthcare professionals, industry representatives, entrepreneurs, administrators, and policy makers under a common platform, where the latest developments related to Nanomedical Sciences and allied areas can be shared. This congress allowed the next generation of scientists to share a common platform and directly interact with globally renowned academicians, researchers, including Nobel laureates, from the fields of nanomedical sciences and allied areas.
